

Huck Flynn

COMEDIAN

Huck has brought his guitar on stage with him from day one. His different brand of humor mixed with lots of music really throws the audience for a loop...they weren't expecting it. So, wherever he goes he's "the rock n' roll comedian" and the crowds love him.

In 1978, Huck met Chuck Barris and the two became friends and Huck wound up doing 5 Gong Shows. In 1985, he joined The "Otis Day & the Knights" tour on the east coast. After filming Knots Landing for CBS in 1987, and while visiting a comedy club in the Bay area, he ran into a couple old friends, Marty Cohen, and Bruce Baum, and together with people like Vic Dunlop and others, he did guest sets at clubs around the bay area...he became a regular on the comedy circuit and the crowds immediately took to him. He quickly started working all over the state and then all over the country. He started at places like the Punch Line, The Comedy Underground, the Riviera Hotel, The Ice House and various clubs and colleges all across the USA.

In 1990, Huck got a call from a club in Roseville, Ca to go open for "The Marshal Tucker Band." The flood gates were open. After that he tried to open for everyone he could including: Eddie Money, .38 special, Elvin Bishop, Lonestar, Sha Na Na, Travis Tritt, Starship, Three Dog Night, and many more.
